Color Study of Trees.

New York Evening Post. "Like the procession of the seasons, the various tree species assume their autumn garb in a regular order. In some localities it may be early or late; but then, our spring or fall does not always arrive in accordance with the almanac. Here and there individual trees may be slow in donning their gay livery, and there are spots where winter lingers though all around the land is warm with returning spring. The prevailing colors might be tentatively summed up

Pure yellow-Tulip tree, yellow and canoe birches, white maple, yellow locust, honey locust, yellowwood, Norwood and sycamore maples, beech, willow, cucumber, atlanthus, Yellow ochre-Larch, poplar, aspen. Lemon yellow-Hickories, black walnut. Dull yellow-White elm, chestnut, white birch, basswood, butternut, catalpa, cotton-Vandyke brown-Sycamore or buttonwood.

Orange-Black birch, horse chestnut. gingko. Red-Scarlet oak, sumach, dogwood, horn-Scarlet, crimson and yellw-Red maple. Red, yellow and green-Hard maple, sassafras.

Wanted to Be Polite.

The street car was well-filled when they got on. There was just one seat left, and it required some crowding to show that that was there. But the two young men needed a seat; they had been imbibing and were a bit uncertain whether they could hang on to a strap. Consequently one of them crowded into a vacant seat and the other sat on his lap. They both went to sleep. They rocked to and fro as the car stopped and started, as it slacked up and then increased its speed, but the top one seemed never to lose his balance enough to awaken him. Then a corpulent woman entered. She glanced around the car, but every man was busy with a paper with the exception of the two who were asleep. She happened to catch a strap directly in front of them as the car started and looked around again. but no one seemed to see her. "It's funny," she said pointedly as a sudden jerk of the car nearly made her drop a bundle she carried, "that there's no gentlemans in this 'ere car."

That awoke the man sitting on his friend's knees. He rubbed his eyes, made a quick survey of the car, jumped up and Then everyone laughed except the woman to whom the courtesy had been exone who had extended the courtesy laughed himself as soon as he realized the situa-

At the beginning of the week $2.15@3.90. Receipts for week, 27,600. there was rather a strong market for the best grades of steers, and prices advanced fully 10@ 15c. Later in the week, however, local packing this class of cattle, and with less than the usual competition from outside sources prices began to sag, and finilly all of the early gain in prices was lost. The last half of the week, however, the market in a general way was inclined those not quite up to the standard sold possibly 10c lower. There was a better outlet for stockern extras, 21c; Western seconds to firsts, 171/2 ers and feeding cattle than last week, but there was no perceptible improvement in prices. The market the first of the week for female butcher cattle was as dull and unsatisfactory as it ever has been in this market. Some of the leading local houses were not buying anything, and it was very difficult to consummate sales at unevenly lower prices. The latter part of the week, however, there was quite an improvement in the demand for this class of cattle, and an outlet was found for a great deal of stale stock as well as the fresh arrivals. 1......110 Hogs-Receipts, 2,500; shipments, 500. The receipts of hogs this week are not quite as large as last week, but nearly 10,000 larger than the same week a year ago and 12,500 larger than the corresponding week two years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are over 199,000 larger than the same time last year and for the month thus far there is a gain of nearly 48,000 compared with the same period a year ago. For the week ending yesterday the leading local packers bought a total of 19,669 hogs; against 13,924 the preceding week and 9,903 the same week a year ago. During the same period the shipments were 11,224, against 14,034 the preceding week and 9.657 the corresponding week a year ago. There has been a very nervous condition of affairs in the hog market this week. The reforced to pay very strong prices to get their requirements and the result was a very rapid advance in values, which finally became very attractive to shippers and by Wednesday there was a considerable increase in the marketing, the supply that day being the largest since the 6th of the month. This, no doubt, was what buyers had been bidding for, and they took advantage of the situation and forced an unusual reaction in prices. Sales were made anywhere from 15c to 40c lower than the preceding day and the average of the market indicated that practically all, if not al!, of the gain of four days had been lost. This was followed by considerably smaller supplies and naturaly a stronger market. The advance the last half of the week was gradual, but at the extreme close of the week medium to heavy hogs especially had recovered a good part of the loss in price Wednesday. Light hogs, however, did not fare as well and at the close of the week were probably 10c to 15c lower than Tuesday. Packers and shippers were both free buyers at current prices, but packers bought a considerably larger proportion of the hogs than last week. There is continued speculation as to the probable supplies in the near future, and it seems to be generally believed that the marketing will not be as liberal as it has been. It has been the experience in the past, however, that a large supply has been obtainable for a day or two at least at anytime that prices were in an attractive position. The quality of current offerings coninues generally satisfactory, but at the extreme good as it has been. The receipts to-day were small, being only a little more than half as large as a week ago and, in keeping with re-ports from other places, it was rather expected that there would be an active demand for the supply at higher prices. There was some disappointment, however, on account of the limited demand from shippers and early expectations were not realized. The market opened with only fair competition between buyers and the demand was principally for the medium to heavy grades. Salesmen finally succeeded in selling this class of hogs at strong to 10c higher prices than yes-terday, but there was very little opposition for light weights, and sales usually did not represent any quotable gain in prices. There was not much lite in the trade at any time during the day, but a satisfactory clearance was finally On the late market, after shipping orders had been well supplied, packers were more in-dependent and the last sales were probably &c lower than equal kinds sold earlier in the day. Transactions ranged from $5.55 to $6.10, and the bulk of the supply sold from $5.75 to $6.05. Quo-Good to choice medium to heavy Mixed and heavy packing..... Good to choice light weights common to fair light weights Inferior to best pigs..... Roughs and stags ... -Representative Sales .-Dk.

ceipts of sheep and lambs this week have been | and harder to please." liberal, showing a gain of 200 over last week, 1,400 over the same week a year ago and 700 over the corresponding week two years ago. The receipts thus far this year are 1,700 larger than the same time last year and the receipt for the month thus far are over 3,800 larger than the same period a year ago. There has not been a great deal of change in the sheep and lamb market this week. At different times prices were lambs could be sold as high as $5.50, but the next grade, or those that sold from $4.75 to $5.25, ccasionally represented 25c decline, and on one day there were probably a few sales negotiated at a decline of 50c campored with the close of last week. There has not been a strong demand from local sources at any time this week, and with unfavorable conditions existing in Eastern markets, shippers have been more cautious buyers. Therefore the results were probably as good as could have been expected. The highest prices paid this week were $5.50 for lambs, $3.50 for yearlings and $3.25 for sheep, and at the close of the week good lambs were selling at $5@5.25 and sheep around $3. There was a fair Saturday run to-day, and with some little mand from all sources the market was as ac tive as could be expected at this time in th week, and sales were usually at about steady prices compared with yesterday. Lambs sold as high as $5.50 and inferior to good kinds brought $365.25. Sheep sold as high as $3.25 and ordi nary to good kinds were reported at $2@3.1

WOMEN IN HOLLAND.

They Work Very Hard and Are Careful Housewives.

New York Tribune.

In little Holland the hardest work seems to be done by the women, whether it be wearing a crown or pulling a peat boat on a canal. This latter we actually saw in Gronngen, a city in the northern part of Holland. It was a large boat, heavily laden. A man, probably the husband, was in it, steering it safely along past other similar freight boats, while a woman was on the towpath, pulling with all her might. The tow line was attached to a sort of wooden yoke fastened to her shoulders and waist. Market day is peculiarly woman's day, and what a busy scene it makes! In Holland there are always scores and scores of fishfrom wooden yokes placed over their shoulders. There are women with butter, women with eggs, women with fruit, women with vegetables; again others presiding over their shouldepart from Meridian and Georgia streets.

One is sure to find a table of sweetmeats for the children. We bought of these occasions, consisting of two of the between them. Besides the regular market days, every morning fishwomen may be days, every morning fishwomen may be Half-hour cars for Greenfield and intermediate Half-hour cars for the above hourly schedfairs in the hog market this week. They must take what they can get for the fish, 7:27 p. m. and on bad days, when buyers are scarce, they get little enough.

The good housewife sometimes sends the maid to market, but more generally she goes in person to select the supply of fresh fruit and vegetables for her family. Indeed, the lady of the house in both Holland and Germany follows the commendable custom of looking after the many wants of her family in person, even when her wealth and position do not make this necessary. For instance, she will let the girl set the table for luncheon, but after the family have gathered my lady herself makes the tea and cuts and spreads the bread. I said "cuts and spreads the bread." This should be reversed, for, in reality, after spreading a napkin on her lap she takes the loaf of bread, spreads one end with butter, then Martinsville at 5:30 a. m. cuts off a slice, spreads again, cuts another slice, and so on, all the time holding the loaf in her hand. Once when we were entertained at luncheon where there were two children our hostess passed us the butter and some slices of bread, explaining that she had heard that in America it was customary for each guest at table to spread his own bread. For her husband and children she had made the sandwiches as usual. The little girl, watching us break off bits of bread with the fingers, either imitated us unconsciously or preferred our method to that of cutting her sandwich into neat little squares, as Dutch etiquette required. However, her conduct did not pass unobserved or without rebuke. Her mother reminded her that if she had not learned to eat properly she would have to leave the table. I ventured to remark that we had set the child a bad example. "Oh," she said, "It is all right for you ladies, but Sientie knows

The Hotel Man's Profits.

A man who runs a large and popular hotel at a seashore place said the other day that the profit to him from a guest who stayed at his place a month was six times greater than that from a guest who stays one week. "You see," he said, "when they come down here the change of cooking gives them a big appetite. I have always noticed that the first day a person is here he taxes my table heavier than do the heart-to-heart talks page. I give any other day. And so it goes for a week. advice about love and tonics, and how to Everything delights him, and he eats ravenously all the week, for the change of to Cousin William's wedding and grandfood excites his appetite.
